PROFILE

I am a full-stack web developer with a heavy entrepreneurial mindset. As I have gained more and more work experience, I have become intrigued at the essential role that software plays in the success and growth of each industry. Since I have first trained to understand basic business principles and the concepts behind driving consumers, I have a uniquely creative approach in the way that I develop software. I am a self sufficient individual that has a clear understanding of the ultimate end-game of each company that I help in its advancement.
